Angling in Buffalo Lake Waters Begins Saturday for Fishermen

Settlement Asked On ROW Cases

Texas Highway Department representatives prodded Randall County Commissioners Court Monday to settle some pending cases that grew out of Amarillo Expressway right-of-way disputes.

Knox Parr and Pete Styner, right-of-way engineers for the highway department, urged that commissioners have the cases pending in county court reset, tried, and settled, so the highway department may reimburse the county for the state's share of the cost.

The cases, some of them as much as four years old, were to be tried April 1, but were postponed when Roy Joe Stevens resigned as county judge that day.

Flesher to Reset Cases

Interim County Judge W. J. Flesher agreed to reset the cases as soon as A. W. Lair, county criminal district attorney, would be able to represent the county. Lair has three weeks of 47th District Court coming up.

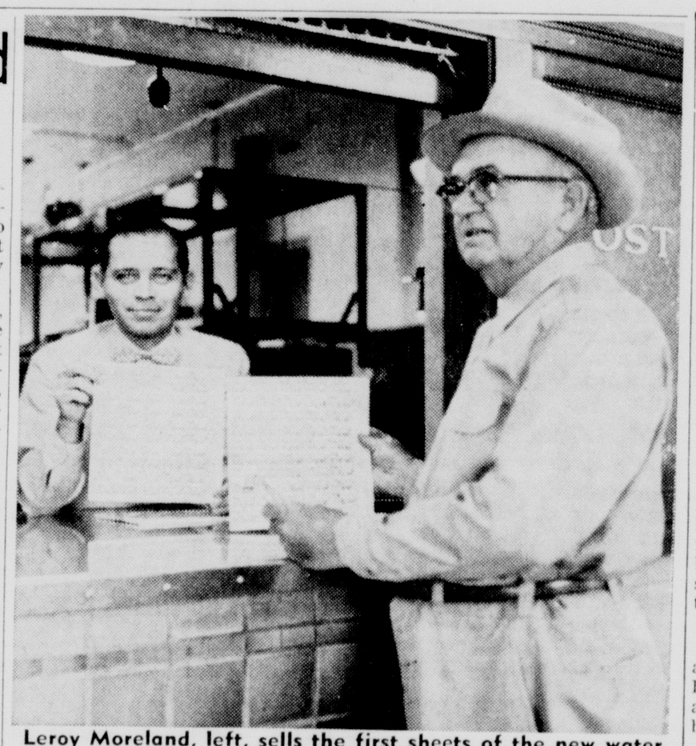

In other business, El Paso Natural Gas Company presented a bill for approximately $8,000 for moving pipelines during construction of the expressway.

Confer With Cummings

Commissioners conferred with County Auditor E. T. Cummings to determine how to pay the bill, since there is not enough money in the road and bridge fund at this time. The road and bridge fund has more than $8,000 coming to it from state funds.

Commissioners hoped to borrow the money from other county funds and repay it when the county has been reimbursed by the state.

A note of appreciation was received from Bob Darnell, refuge manager at Buffalo Lake, thanking the county for the men and fire trailer sent to aid firefighters in controlling a grass fire at the lake April 17.

Leroy Moreland, left, sells the first sheets of the new water conservation stamp to J. W. Spencer, chairman of the board of directors of the Randall-Potter County Soil Conservation District. The stamps went on sale for the first time last week. Moreland is an employee of the Canyon post office.

Eradication Of Rough Fish Said Complete

Get out your fishing tackle and make sure your fishing license is valid if you use a rod and reel because Buffalo Lake will be open to anglers Saturday for the first time in a year.

The lake was closed to fishermen last April and the fish were poisoned in it. Since then the lake has been restocked with over a million channel catfish, crappie, and bass fingerlings.

Bob Darnell, manager of Buffalo Lake for the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said "only results of fishing can reveal how well the bass, channel cat, and crappie stocked last year have survived the past severe winter."

No Racing, Skiing

And to give anglers a fair chance at testing the fish in the lake, Darnell has closed it to boat racing and water skiing for two weeks, beginning Saturday.

Meanwhile, Woody Pond, state game warden for this area, warned that those from out-of-county or those fishing with some kind of winding device, such as a reel, need 1960 fishing licenses.

Goldfish Survived

"Preliminary checks indicate that last year's rough fish eradication program was successful," Darnell said. "Many goldfish survived the treatment, but goldfish are not considered troublemakers in Panhandle waters. Tierra Blanca Creek (which feeds the lake) was treated as far as Hereford to eliminate the large source of rough fish contamination above the lake."

Rough fish were eliminated from the lake last April when rotenone was sprayed on the lake from a plane and dumped in the lake by boats. The event attracted some 10,000 persons.

Rotenone is not actually a poison, but a paralyzing agent. When mired into the water, it paralyzes the fish gills so the fish can't breathe.

35,000 Fished in 1958

Tests conducted at the lake before the fish were killed showed 83 percent of the fish were shad.

Selective kills had been conducted in previous years at the lake but had not been successful in removing rough fish from the popular fishing and boating spot.

Over 35,000 people fished Buffalo Lake in 1958. When full the lake covers about 2,400 surface acres with about 20 miles of shoreline. At present, however, the lake covers about 1,000 surface acres and has about seven miles of shoreline.

"Continued success of the eradication program may now be furthered by local sportsmen," Darnell said. "It is a well known fact that many of us would rather dump unused minnows in the lake when we are through fishing than to carry them home. Don't. If minnows contain carp, shad, or sucker, restocking of the lake with rough fish will be a rapid process.

"Over 35,000 people fished Buffalo in 1958. If that many fish again this year, with an average leaving one carp apiece to grow and reproduce, it won't be long until fishing will be ruined again.

"Each fisherman can help individually to keep rough fish out of Buffalo Lake. If using creek minnows, clean out the rough fish and take the spare minnows home when you are through fishing. Buy minnows only from a dealer who raises his own bait or buys clean minnows from an established bait raiser. In any case, take your unused minnows home, don't take a chance on restocking Buffalo Lake with rough fish."

FFA Teams Qualify For State Contests

Two Future Farmers of America judging teams qualified for the state contests but participants in the Interscholastic League regional competition didn't fare as well Saturday at the various high school meets held in Lubbock.

The FFA teams, coached by Ed Dwyer, high school vocational agriculture teacher, will journey to College Station Thursday for the state meet April 30.

Teams judging poultry and dairy products qualified for the state meet by placing in the FFA contests Saturday at Texas Tech.

The poultry judging team, composed of Gary Carver, Robert Irving, Douglas Bond, and Harley Wesley, placed seventh, while the dairy products judging team wrapped up fifth place in area competition. On the dairy products team are Jim McAnarney, Noel Howard, James Gouge, and John Cummins.

Crops Cop Seconds

Members of the crops teams chalked up a second place in area competition and second place among the entire 110 Panhandle high schools. However, there is no state contest for crops teams.

Members of crops team are Charles Evers, who won second high individual honors in judging, David Yarbrough, who placed seventh in high individual honors, Robert Ham and Elo Myers.

Members of teams which did not place include:

Clean Up Campaign Begins Here May 8

Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up Week will be observed in Canyon May 8 through May 14, it was announced this week by Raymond Raillard, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce's city-wide cleanup committee.

Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up Week annually heralds the beginning of the spring season, and is the time when civic leaders urge residents to improve their property.

It is the week set aside each year by the Chamber of Commerce for the cleaning of vacant lots, streets, and alleys, and for the overall beautification of Canyon.

Committee Members

Serving on the committee this year for the C of C and arranging for the various activities during the week are Raillard, Mrs. A. C. Haley, Jr., Mrs. O. W. Parker, J. B. Roberts, and C. R. Hillier.

Each day during the week has been set aside for a certain activity. The schedule is Sunday, Church Cooperation Day; Monday, Parade Day; Tuesday, Fix Up Day; Wednesday, Paint Up Day; Thursday, Front Yard and Back Yard Day; Friday, Landscape and Planting Day; Saturday, Pick Up Day, and Sunday, Clean Up and Go to Church Day.

Arrangements for this year's parade have not been worked out, but plans will be announced next week by Mrs. Haley. The parade is tentatively scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday.

Scouts Out for Paper

On Pick Up Day, Boy Scouts will pick up all paper that is bound and left at the curb in front of residences, while volunteers from the different civic organizations will pick up all trash that is left in the alley.

Meanwhile, Roberts is visiting all the men's civic clubs in town asking for volunteers for Pick Up Day. He is asking members if they can furnish a pick-up or larger truck; if the members will help load the trucks, and if they can help, would they prefer to work in the morning or afternoon.

Anyone who has not been contacted by Roberts and would like to help in the beautification of the city, should call him at OL 5-2246.

On Young 'King and I' Actors

Combination of Careers Tough

By NELL FINDLEY

When "The King and I" goes on the boards at the Branding Iron Theatre at West Texas State College May 3-7, the juvenile members of the cast will be receiving the final test in their ability to combine a theatrical career with a full-time education.

The six performances, including a Saturday matinee, will climax several weeks of intensive rehearsals, coming, for the junior high actors, from two to five times a week, but somewhat less frequently for the younger actors.

Rob Barnard, George Cox, Michael Morris, and John Brantley—the juvenile leads—together with WAM Moore, rehearsal accompanist, show high achievement in school and extra-curricular activities.

Have Other Interests

In addition to their school load, all the boys take music lessons, some studying two or more instruments.

Other serious interests of the group include athletics, Scouts, hobbies such as stamp, coin, and arrowhead collections, photography and church work.

The boys' time seems already filled to the minute with interesting things to do, but in February they found time, with many other 11-to-14-year-olds, to study a scene and a song from "The King and I" in preparation for try-outs.

18 Boys Selected

Under supervision of music teachers, Mrs. W. R. Wilson and Gene Murray, the youngsters worked after school and during the noon hour.

Eighteen boys were selected to appear before members of the West Texas State drama and music departments.

A final selection of four students was made by college personnel. Two of the four, George and John, will alternate in playing the role of the prince, son of the King of Siam. The other two, Rob and Michael, will alternate performances of Louis, son of Mrs. Anna, teacher to the royal children.

Must Have Accent

Both roles offer challenges to the young actors.

Louis is the first major character to appear after the curtain rises. He plays the opening scene with Mrs. Anna. The role demands that the boys learn to speak with an English accent. In order to make the accent sound natural, the boys sometimes practice at home—to the amazement of the Matthis and Barnard households.

The prince has a dynamic role. During the action of the play, he must show that he is coming under the influence of western ideas. In the important closing speech of the play, the prince demonstrates that he has become king, not only in name, but in thought and action.

In addition to problems offered by their roles in the play, the young actors must give attention to keeping up in their school work and their many other activities.

Use All Available Time

Each is expert at using all available school time, including noon study hall, for homework, but this is not always enough.

They frequently bring their books to the traditional actors' Green Room, where they can listen through loud-speakers for their cues to appear on stage. In this sanctum, the King (acted by Royal Brantley) may find himself explaining the intricacies of English grammar, which may be a puzzlement to the King, but is no puzzle to Brantley.

Not an actor in the play, but an important participant in rehearsals, is the rehearsal accompanist, WAM Moore. WAM finds his considerable acting experience, on WT campus and with the Yale Dramatic Society, a great help in his present job, which demands that he watch cues carefully, come in on time, and in general, adapt his playing to the action on the stage.

Studies at Piano

To keep up with his homework, which he finds heavy in the eighth grade, WAM keeps a table by the piano, so that as odd minutes occur during the long, late, and numerous rehearsals, he can put in the necessary time studying or writing.

None of the boys feel that his school work has suffered from his work on the play. As rehearsals grow more frequent—every night of the last week before the public performances—they know they will have to put in more study time during rehearsals, but they seem to have their study patterns already well established.

In addition to the leading juvenile characters, the King's 67 children are represented in the ratio of about three to one by 21 younger children, ranging in age from 3 to 12.

Group Forms Nucleus

The nucleus of this group of royal Siamese children is from the play, "The Child and the Star," written by a West Texas State student, Avent Smith, and presented during the Christmas season. Other interested children were added to this group.

Rehearsing a school room scene are these Canyon youngsters who will appear in "The King and I" as the royal children of Siam. Leading the group is Marian Forbau of Canyon, who will play one of the lead roles as Anna. The Rodgers-Hammerstein musical will open Tuesday and run through Saturday in the Branding Iron Theatre at West Texas State College.

Kiwanians Taking Auction Articles

Persons wishing to donate articles to the Kiwanis Club for the club's first annual auction may take the goods to the Hart building on the west side of the square starting Wednesday, George Blackwell, president, said.

The club will hold the auction Saturday at 1 p.m.

Already donated for the auction is a 1953 Pontiac by Bruce Blackaby-Ford, two washing machines, plus numerable smaller items, Blackwell said.

The Kiwanians will auction off anything donated to them by residents and use the money for Babe Ruth League, safety programs, and other civic activities.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Slated

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church is sponsoring a Mother-Daughter Banquet Thursday evening, May 5, in Fellowship Hall.

The affair is open to all women and their daughters in Canyon. Anyone wishing to buy tickets may contact members of the WSCS or call Mrs. Alfred Bellah or Mrs. Art Roberts. Tickets must be purchased by Wednesday, May 4.

Face Lifting Time

Spring and cleaning.

These are two words which have become practically inseparable. The mop, the bucket, the scrub brush are as symbolic of this season as the lilacs and dandelions.

Nothing is quite so satisfying as the wakening from winter doldrums to the constructive action of cleaning, scrubbing, and polishing.

If we add to this basic spring mixture the further ingredients of repairing steps, roof, electrical appliances, painting interior and exterior surfaces, and planting flowers, our community will reflect nature's reawakening.

And while you probably see the benefit of spring cleaning and renovating in your own home, perhaps you wander about the effectiveness of the upcoming Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up Week, which is scheduled in Canyon May 8 through May 14.

Provided everyone cooperates, what will we gain? Even this partial list will probably surprise you:

1) Development of community spirit;
2) Reduction of fire losses;
3) Instruction in good housekeeping;
4) Respect for property;
5) Vacant lot improvement;
6) Promotion of safety;
7) Discouragement of crime;
8) Citizenship courses for children;
9) Improvement of employee morale;
10) Increase in the value of real estate.

How do we win? In every way that will contribute to our safety, health, and general well being.

So, it's up to you. If you support the campaign, we will all benefit, individually and collectively.

Clean Up-Paint Up-Fix Up—it's a winning proposition.

It seems that a greater portion of news items the past few weeks have arrived at the Leader office either Tuesday or Wednesday. Many of these items could have been turned in over the weekend or Monday which would certainly relieve the strain on our Linotype operator.

We have done our best to get these news items in the Leader but we are now to the point where we must abide by our deadline for such items as we have gone into the night on press day the past several weeks mainly on account of an overload on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings.

All news items that could be reported the latter part of the week or Monday must be in the Leader office by Monday noon or they will go into the file "W," that's the waste basket. News items originating Monday must be in Tuesday morning or will receive the same treatment.

We are not trying to be hard boiled but only want to give you the best home town paper possible and that cannot be done without abiding by a deadline. Your cooperation will help us to give you a better, up-to-date paper. Thanks.

Don't Blame the Kids

According to Mary Conway Kohler, former judge of the San Francisco Juvenile Court, there are 5,500 kids in our nation charged with some form of delinquency every 24 hours. What's causing it? There are many suggestions such as poor parents, TV shows, kids having too much time on their hands, no work for them, or schools not strict enough.

All of these and many others have contributed to this topsy-turvy society these youngsters are trying to get a foothold in. But I believe the real cause can be found by standing in front of a full-length mirror and saying to ourselves . . . it's US. And if it's us, where do we go from here?

I think we all agree that the kids would be better off working at home but if they weren't taught to mow the lawn or rake the leaves when they were small, how can we expect them, when they become 14 or 15 years old, to suddenly decide to go home and mow the lawn?

It's been our experience at Boys Ranch that 98 per cent of the boys who have lived with us are "A Spitting Image" of their parents. I recall an 11-year-old youngster from Arkansas whose father was on his second hitch in the pen for borrowing the neighbors' cars and he admitted to his son that he had stolen 37 cars.

Was it any wonder this youngster swiped one of our's the second night at the Ranch and made the brag to our staff when they found him that by the time he was 21 years old he would steal more cars than his old man did? What can this boy go home to?

If children were taught to mind, there would be a lot more happy and contented kids. It's always been amazing to me how children respond to affectionate discipline and positive decisions. If boys were taught to mind, there would be no reason to have a Boys Ranch.

Naturally, we are only asked to take youngsters who have slipped their halters off and are running loose. The longer they graze on the neighbors' pastures, the more difficult our job of convincing them that there is a boundary line that cannot be crossed without a penalty to the trespasser.

A father and mother can cruelly handicap their child for life by not teaching him or her to mind. A child that has never received a positive answer is constantly trying for something it knows it shouldn't have . . . it knows no boundary.

During the Christmas rush in one of the super markets, Mrs. Farley and I watched a little 2-year-old girl as she and her mother passed from one counter to another. At least half of the time the little girl would ask her mother for something she saw. Each time, instead of saying NO or YES, the mother tried to explain WHY she couldn't have it.

Finally they arrived in front of the cookie case where the little girl, when refused a certain cookie by the mother, laid down on the floor, kicked up her heels and started screaming. The embarrassed mother tried to cool "Eloise" down by explaining WHY instead of taking some very positive action in the form of a few well-aimed love pats in the right place.

This would have saved Mamma embarrassment and some future husband a lot of headaches, to say nothing of a life of unhappiness by "Eloise" trying to scream her way with everyone with whom she comes in contact.

Some Family Expressions Puzzle Outsiders - - - Such as 'A Person'

By BOYCE HOUSE

Every family has expressions which all the members understand but which puzzle outsiders.

Uncle Albert, who lived in Coldwater, Miss., came up to Memphis, when I was a boy, to visit us. As he opened the front door, he saw (or thought he did) a lady in the dimly-lighted vestibule so he said, "Good evening, ma'am." A closer look revealed that the "lady" was a halltree with a lady's hat on top and various hanging garments.

He commented to us, "I thought that was a person."

So with us ever since, a halltree has been "a person."

In Sheffield, Ala., a lumber-yard sign, "Gentlest terms in town";

In another small town, a big pile of coal in the side-yard of a cottage—no doubt the winter's fuel supply; (an odd sight to a visitor from gas-fueled Texas);

And in another small town a tablet on the depot platform, informing the traveler that this had been the home of Annie Wheeler (1868-1955), the daughter of Gen. Joe Wheeler (of the Civil War and the Spanish War) who had been a nurse in Cuba, the Philippines and, during World War I, in France.

The train stopped in Iuka and Corinth, names recalled from the study of American history. There was nothing now about the appearance of either place to indicate to the passenger that they had been scenes of two battles. A supply of box lunches was brought aboard at Corinth — four pieces of chicken, French fries, pickle and pie for only 75 cents. At Iuka, autos, halted because the train blocked the street, had to use brakes to remain motionless on the steep hill. Between the two towns, the woods still grow right down to the railroad right-of-way on both sides — woods that once echoed with the rebel yell and with rifle fire, where clouds of smoke hung and where blood reddened the ground.

New Regulations Govern 2-4-D Use

Randall County farmers and ranchers are cautioned to follow new regulations on the use of farm chemicals. Some of these chemicals are herbicides such as 2-4-D weed killers.

Under new regulations this weed killer cannot be approved for use wheat, oats, barley, or rye within 50 days before harvest. Since harvest of these grains here usually begins in mid-June, the time for using them is about over, John Brazzil, county agent, said.

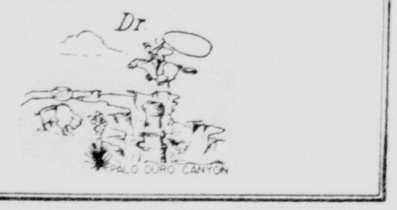

Under existing regulations 2-4-D is not approved for use on grain sorghums for weed control.

Pasture and grass crops cannot be sprayed for weed control where cattle are to be grazed.

Users of all agricultural chemicals should read the label on the chemical and follow the directions completely. In this way no agricultural product will be contaminated if all cautions are followed.

Brazzil will have the regulations as they are cleared. At this time some confusion exists because much of the basic research work has not been completed.

Mail Must Be Addressed Correctly Or Post Office Cannot Deliver It

Although directory service for ordinary mail was discontinued by the Post Office Department 10 years ago, letters continue to be received with the notation "Please Give Directory Service" or with illegible or incomplete addresses, Postmaster Marion Higdon said.

First-class letter mail which cannot be delivered because of insufficient address, or which fails for other reasons to reach its intended destination, is carefully scrutinized at the address office by experienced distributors before it is returned. This does not mean, however, that city and telephone directories are searched in an effort to effect delivery.

Prior to the abolition of directory service, mailers were often not aware that they were addressing their mail improperly because the post office was, in most cases, able to locate the addressee through the use of directories. As a result, patrons continued to address mail improperly and the post office continued to give expensive supplemental assistance, Higdon said.

Now, however, mail addressed to carrier delivery offices which does not bear a complete street or post office box address is usually marked "Insufficient Address" and returned. The only exceptions are those instances where the addressee is so well known that directory service is unnecessary.

Present regulations restrict directory service to perishable matter, parcels of obvious value, special services mail, mail from armed forces overseas, and international mail.

"If guess work is used in addressing mail intended for carrier delivery, it stands very little chance of accomplishing its mission.

"On the other hand, mail showing the full name of the addressee, the correct street address or box number and, of course, the city and state, has the basic equipment for reaching its goal," the postmaster stated.

CHEVROLET

Chevy middleweight shows the big rigs how it's done!

That's a 6303 medium-duty Chevrolet powered by a 283-cu.-in. V8. But there's sure nothing medium-duty about the load. Mr. J. E. Blankinship, Arkansas logging contractor, says both of his torsion-spring 6303's "move along at 40 to 50 miles per hour with 55,000 pounds gross weight and maintain a 5-trip-a-day schedule with no trouble at all." Figure the money you save when you've got a medium-duty truck that can cover 30,000 back-country miles a year with a high-tonnage load!

We've never seen anything like the amount of praise truck owners are heaping on Chevy's new torsion spring suspension. Owners like the fact the truck handles a whole lot easier, can move faster off the road without beating the driver to death and shaking loose all the sheet metal. They like the idea of extra thousands of miles before trade-in! . . . Drive a '60 Chevy just once. It's a whole new experience.

Chevy middleweight averages 200 miles of back roads a day dogging timber out of the woods and delivering it to the mill at Crossett, Arkansas.

WORTH MORE BECAUSE THEY WORK MORE! CHEVROLET STURDI-BILT TRUCKS

Canyon Artist Sets Exhibit, Tea Sunday

A one-man exhibit by a Canyon senior will open Sunday in the Fine Arts Building at West Texas State College.

Don Duncan, who is receiving his degree in education with an art teaching field in May, will be honored with a tea from 2 until 6 p.m. Sunday.

A total of 35 pieces will be included in the one-man show. Included will be scenes, still life, and commercial art work, done in pen and ink, caseins, and oils.

A 1956 graduate of Canyon High School, Duncan is married to the former Diane Prichard, and they have one daughter, Rene, who is one year old.

He is the son of Mrs. Edna Duncan and is employed by The Canyon News.

Duncan, 22, prefers to draw and paint people, and his favorite medium is oils.

Quail Available For Restocking

Farmers interested in restocking their land with quail are asked to contact John Brazzil, county agent, or Woody Pond, game warden.

The Texas Game and Fish Commission has baby quail for sale for 50 cents each for restocking purposes. The number that can be purchased will be limited by the ability of the field to carry quail.

Application blanks can be obtained from either Pond or Brazzil.

Buffs Get Bowe To Sign Contract

Richard Bowe, one of the state's most sought-after tackles and all-district at Happy High School for four years, has signed an athletic scholarship contract with West Texas State.

The 6-2, 210-pound lineman announced his intention to join Coach Joe Kerbel and his staff after spurning offers of 15 other colleges, including six Southwest Conference schools.

Richard accomplished a rarity in high school circles, making all-district first team as a freshman. In addition, he was chosen all-regional three seasons and made first team all-South Plains this past year.

The all-round athlete lettered four years in football, four in basketball, and three in track. His high school coach was Jodie Mahan.

Carrying an 89 average in high school, he plans to major in mathematics at West Texas. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Bowe.

FOR... STATE REPRESENTATIVE

(94TH FLOTORIAL DIST.)

Meet General Jerry Lee! He is not only a man you should know—he is the man you should ELECT to the State Legislature.

Robert Sherrod, in an article published in Saturday Evening Post, 1955, painted a most perceptive portrait of General Lee. He called him, among other things, a "real character", "the toughest guy in the Air Force", and a man who was "better informed about the outside world than all but a few military men I have known." Elect a man of knowledge — Experience and Action. Elect a man who will represent all the people.

State Has Agency to Keep Check On Problem of Additives to Food

Health authorities on all levels of government keep a constant vigil on the problem of the food additives. Federal and state laws as well as local ordinances protect the public from accidental or intentional adulteration of food and drugs.

The Food and Drug Division of the Texas State Department of Health is the responsible agency in Texas for enforcing state food and drug laws. The task has many facets—from checking bread labels to tasting milk.

Hardly any food is not altered in some manner to improve taste, intensify color, keep fresh longer, or enrich its food value.

New Pamphlet Available

A new pamphlet, published by the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, entitled "Food Additives" helps to explain some of the complexities of the problem.

Additives are a regular part of modern food merchandising. There are several categories of additives in common use.

Nutrient supplements are the vitamins and minerals added to foods to improve nutritive value, and sometimes to replace those removed in processing. For example, thiamine (vitamin B1), riboflavin (vitamin B2), and niacin (another B vitamin) and iron must be added to bread if the bread is to be called "enriched."

Sugar Substitutes Used

Sugar substitutes or non-nutritive sweeteners are permitted in foods for people who must restrict their intake of ordinary sweets. Saccharin and the calcium and sodium cyclamates (cyclo hexyl sulfamates) are commonly used.

There are many different types of preservatives, each type being best suited to a particular type of product, or more effective against a particular spoilage organism or chemical change.

Smoothness of texture of confectionary, ice cream, and other frozen desserts; uniformity of color, flavor, and viscosity of chocolate milk; "body" of artificially sweetened beverages—all of these things are controlled through the use of stabilizers and thickeners.

Food and drug authorities must make sure that labels correctly identify the product—including all contents—and test for possible harmful effects on humans.

(A weekly feature of Public Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health).

Canyon Residents to Receive New 'Electronic' Phone Bills

Some telephone customers in Canyon will be getting a new type long distance statement with their next telephone bills, Al Leach, manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, has announced.

Leach said the new type bills are the result of a new, faster, more efficient method of billing out-of-town calls. He said Canyon was chosen as one of the pilot cities for this new service, and that gradually "electronic billing" of out-of-town calls will be introduced in other cities in Texas where Southwestern Bell operates.

According to the manager the new system works like this: Long distance operators will record the information about each call on a special call with a magnetic pencil. Leach explained every long distance operator marks down information about each out-of-town call she handles.

Timed by Special Clock

The place called, the telephone number there, and the caller's telephone number are at present written in a long hand code on a special slip of paper. The call is then timed by a special clock and forwarded to a clerk who computes the charges for billing purposes.

Under the electronic billing system this information will be recorded in the form of "bubbles" or special marks instead of the long hand code in use now.

Since the marks are made with a magnetic pencil the "tickets" or slips of paper can be processed through an IBM machine which will translate the marks into billing information and then print it on the bill mailed to the customer.

Because of the immense training job involved, operators are being trained a few at a time, and not all Canyon operators have finished this training at present. Some operators will continue to use the old method of recording information on out-of-town calls.

"As a result of training a few operators at a time," Leach said, "it is possible that a customer might not get an operator trained in the new method each time he places a call. As a result this customer will receive two long distance statements with his monthly bill.

One statement will be for calls billed under the old method and the other for calls billed electronically. We plan to include explanatory information with each bill so the customer will not think he's being billed twice."

Leach emphasized not all customers will get the new bills during April. "It is conceivable," he said, "that a customer could make several out-of-town calls and never get an operator trained in the new method. In that case his long distance bill would look the same as it always has."

Leach said the complete changeover would take about three months.

Form the habit of thinking — it soothes a tired mind and body.

Three outstanding high school centers have accepted basketball scholarships to West Texas State, according to Coach Metz LaFollette.

They are Frank Schaeffer, 6-7 Borger star who made the state all-tournament team; Scottie Pierce, 6-6 Post pivotman who set a new school scoring record; and Larry Scevers (pronounced Sievers), 6-7 high scorer from Mason High School.

Schaeffer, whose deadly hook shot helped pace Borger to the state tournament at Austin, has been selected to play with the North in the annual Coaching School All-Star game at Dallas in August. He was the Bulldogs' leading scorer with 15 points in their upset 56-55 win over unbeaten Midland in playoff action. Schaeffer had scholarship offers from 12 colleges.

Pierce, 6-6 and 185 pounds, averaged slightly more than 20 points per game to set a new scoring record for Post High School this year. He led the Antelopes to the District 3-AA championship and made all-district and all-state honorable mention in the process. He is president of the student council at Post and has a "B" average.

Scevers, who stands 6-7 and weighs 180, led his Mason team in scoring this season and has gained all-district honors the past two years. His high school coach was Carman Bonner.

All-Star Actors

The one-act play cast placed two of its four members on the all-star regional cast while its cutting of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" won the second place ribbon. Mrs. Lee Foster directed.

Judy Wheeler and Bill Cornette were picked for the all-star cast.

Other winners include Sandra Barger, third in shorthand; Kerry Knorpp, second in extemporaneous speaking; Sarah Ragle and Virginia Crounse, second in girls debate, and Sue Cheatham, third in editorial writing in the journalism division.

At the Amarillo district FFA convention Monday night at Boys Ranch, Joe Triplett won the right to represent the district in public speaking at the area contest May 14 at Palo Duro High School in Amarillo.

Triplett also was judged the outstanding Lone Star Farmer applicant from the district. Other Canyon FFA boys making successful applications on the district level for Lone Star Farmer degrees were George Loudder and Don Kuehler.

Wilma Burkett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Burkett, was runnerup in the district FFA sweetheart contest.

Former Resident Buried Saturday

Last rites for Mrs. Dollie Hendrix, 90, a former resident of Canyon, were held Saturday at 4 p.m. at LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Mrs. Hendrix died Thursday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Vernie Scown, in Denver City.

A member of the Church of Christ, she had lived in Seminole for the past six years.

Officiating at the services was Bob Wear, minister of the Central Church of Christ.

Burial was in Dreamland Cemetery, with LaGrone Funeral Chapel in charge of arrangements.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Scown, Mrs. E. H. Nobble of Seminole, Mrs. Elmer Nobble of Dimmitt, Mrs. C. H. Fox of Amarillo, and Mrs. Cubby Hurst of Trinidad, Colo.; a son, J. J. Hendrix of Hull, Mont.; 13 grandchildren, and 22 great grandchildren.

Second CD Course Continues Monday

The second in a series of Civil Defense classes will be conducted Monday at 7 p.m. in the Farm Bureau building.

A 12-hour course, the school is being taught by Bernard R. Smith, working through Amarillo Junior College as a qualified Civil Defense instructor.

Enrollment in the course, which is open to anyone, will continue Monday night. The school will meet again May 9 and 16.

Discussed in last Monday's session were county and city plans in the event of a major disaster, a tornado or other type of emergency.

The Randall County Home Demonstration Council is sponsoring the school. The Texas Education Agency, in cooperation with Potter and Randall Counties Civil Defense Corps, set up the course.

Young Actors - -

Two of these youngsters, Melissa Wright and Julie Brantley, are of pre-school age. Melissa, 3, is the best ad-libber of the bunch, according to William A. Moore, the play's co-director.

The other children are Becky and Debbie Wright, Kay Nester, Rodger and Ricky Wilson, Martha and John Harper, Chris and Jamie Olson, Kim Durden, John Wheeler, Bruce and Teddi Crager, Craig Bellah, David Schuette, Chichi and Harry Harper, and Susan Brantley.

Because they have not yet stayed through an entire rehearsal, the group has not had a great problem in keeping up with school work. Moore says, "In theory they bring their books to study." For the dress rehearsals and the final performances, when they stay through the whole play, they may have some free time, and a study room is available to them.

Do Specific Work

The group meets with the big cast to act out scenes in which the royal children appear, then does special work in a class directed by Beth Kimbrough Oliver.

Under Mrs. Oliver's direction, the children have been learning to "leave themselves outside the door" when they come into the theatre. To gain familiarity with the stage and to develop imagination and freedom of movement, they may pantomime familiar activities such as preparing or serving a meal, or act out colors, animals, or bits of music.

The youngsters also are studying background information on the customs, geography, and costumes of Siam. Many came home from one class delighted to report to their parents that "costume" for Siamese children includes going bare-foot—before school is out. They are concerned that make-up for the play will include for this predominantly blond group of children much hair-blacking. Of all the children in the play, only George Cox may leave his hair unblacked.

All of their work is intended to help the children develop on stage the feeling summed up by one of them, Susan Brantley, who said, "We're special. We're the King's kids. Only sometimes we're just kids."

TE-55
Exceptional standability.
Excellent on dry land.
Good on irrigation
Limit—One sack per customer.

THERE IS A REASON WHY - - -

1. Over 8 million pounds of Golden Acres Hybrids will be planted in the U. S. this year, averaging 4 pounds per acre, which is enough seed to plant 2 million acres.
2. Golden Acres Hybrids now more than double the sales of any other brand of Texas and R. S. Certified Hybrids.
3. Approximately ½ million pounds of TE-66 and ½ million pounds of TE-55 were produced and all were sold 90 days after harvest.
4. Golden Acres is now number 2 in total sales of hybrid milos in the nation and is fast approaching the number 1 position.

DID YOU KNOW THAT - - -

1. Taylor-Evans was one of the first companies to treat grain sorghum on a large scale.
2. Taylor-Evans Seed Co. was the first to double treat hybrids and milos on a commercial basis. Now practically all hybrids are double treated for worms and smut.
3. Now this year another first for Golden Acres! We have added the triple treatment—LIQUID FERTILIZER—to increase seedling vigor. All Golden Acres Hybrids are now treated with fertilizer.
4. Golden Acres' two new varieties — TE-55 and TE-66 have one of the shortest stalks of any hybrid on the market today. In tests both showed to be outstanding hybrids for standability.
5. TE-66 has one of the largest grains of any milo on the market today.
6. TE Yieldmaker has shown outstanding ability as a large producer of grains as well as tons of ensilage.

'eam Led by Canyon Man cores 'Touchdown Run'

ormer valedictorian of Canigh School led a group of ntists in computations which e now famous weather satelros I, in a near-perfect orbit. nas H. Thompson, son of Mr. Irs. Clarence L. Thompson 945 valedictorian at Canyon School, and a group of 29 ers, physicists, and mathe-ans worked out the electron-dance system for the satel-

270-pound satellite is spinaround the earth within a of its intended mean radius. argin of difference between tual and ideal orbits is less than half of one percent.

Took Year to Ready

The Bell Telephone Laboratory scientists spent more than a year working on a 300-foot spool of plastic tape which guided Tiros I.

The 31-year-old electrical engineer now living at Basking Ridge, N. J., was at Cape Canaveral, Fla., April 1 to wish the missile bon voyage.

When interviewed by New Jersey newsmen about the shot, he said, "You might compare it to watching your school football team when one of its ball-carriers breaks away from all the tacklers and runs all the way. It was a touchdown run, so to speak."

Tape-Guided Computers

The "program" that guided the space vehicle from the earth was worked out painstakingly on the 300-foot tape. The patterns in the tape told computers on the ground how to hold the missile on course as it roared into space.

Signals, beamed by radio, were received in the missile and converted into action by guidance "hardware" also designed by Bell Lab.

When the missile's powered flight ended and Tiros sped off on its own, the guidance system's role was finished. And the entire guidance operation—which took 30 scientists over a year to perfect—lasted only a few minutes.

Teletypes Scientists

Thompson learned positively of the success of the shot about an hour and a half after blastoff, when the satellite had clocked its first complete trip around the earth.

Thompson sent back word to fellow scientists at the laboratories at Whippany, N. J., over a teletype system.

The former Canyon resident said of the scientists, "If they have anything in common, it is that they are at home and happy in solving abstract problems."

Univac Punched Tape

It took them several months at their slide rules and computers simply to think up the formula for the orbit. Then, as it does for other missile courses it plots, the group sent the secret figures to Remington-Rand Univac in St. Paul, Minn., for punching onto tape.

A few months later the tape came back. Then the group had to check and recheck it for accuracy, using computers in the laboratories as an "artificial missile" to put the guidance system into flight indoors. One misplaced punch is enough to spoil an entire tape.

"The keynote in missile systems is reliability—making things work, and work well," said Thompson. "Every time we catch ourselves saying, 'we know how to do that' we set up an exercise to prove we know how to do it."

First Satellite Project

Although the group has plotted courses for several ballistic missiles, this was its first satellite project for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

With these programs taped for memorization by computers, the scientists are getting ready to steer new missiles on new trajectories.

The man who will lead them is a graduate of the University of Texas, where he received a bachelor degree in electrical and a master of science degree in electrical engineering.

Attended WT for Year

He also attended West Texas State College for one year, but left WT to join the U. S. Navy.

After earning his MS degree at Texas, he was sent to the Bell Telephone Laboratory School of Electrical Engineering at Kelley College in New York.

He is married to the former Sue Ann Moreman, daughter of Mrs. Earline Moreman of Canyon. The couple has three children, David, 5, Stephen, 2, and Sharon, 3 months.

2 Science Profs Awarded Grants

Two West Texas State College sciences division faculty members have received National Science Foundation grants for summer institute study.

They are William R. Wilson, associate professor of physics, and Ebert Ashby, instructor in biology.

Wilson has received one of the foundation's college research participation program fellowships, and was one of 13 college instructors from the Southwest region to be awarded the grant for study at Texas A&M College.

He will assist in research in atomic spectra under Dr. J. B. Coon, professor of physics at A&M. The program starts June 6 and continues through August 26.

Ashby will attend a summer institute for college teachers of biological science at Oregon State College. He held a similar fellowship at the same institution in 1958, and Charles Wright, associate professor of biology, and Dr. Robert C. Busteed, head of the biology department, have previously held foundation fellowships at Oregon State.

Ashby's work during the eight-weeks course will apply on his doctorate work at the University of Texas, where he held a Port Aransas award from the Rod and Reel Club for Marine Science study last summer.

His study this summer will be in the fields of biochemistry, radiation biology, and sytogenetics. Faculty for the summer institute will include outstanding professors in the fields of biochemistry, embryology, and neucrology.

HANDICAPPED

UNRELIABLE

There are a number of ways to reach the heights, but putting up a bluff is not one of them.

Around income-tax time, folks really get money-conscious. They can't quite make up their minds whether they're rich or poor. All they know is it hurts!

Wealth has been defined in many ways. The late H. L. Mencken, that impertinent pundit of the '20's, said it is "any income that is at least $100 more a year than the income of one's wife's sister's husband."

The dictionary says "large possessions," "an abundance of things desired," "affluence," "riches." The word wealth is used in the Bible with various meanings: as worldly possessions in abundance; as strength, emphasizing the power and social standing that come with riches; as ease, pointing to the comfort and luxury made possible by much property.

For the young man who has scrambled to income-tax status by wearing patches on his coatsleeves through college, wealth means having enough money to buy an extra pair of shoes. For the run-of-the-mill American, it's being able to get to the first of each month without embarrassment.

Obviously if the Bureau of Internal Revenue is taking as big a bite of each of today's sufferers claim, we're all doing simply fine. Because one can't get a big bite of nothing; and it's pretty hard to get a big bite of something small. The tax-perts argue that the income tax bite is proportionate. So those who complain that income tax takes much and leaves them little are trying to pull the wool over our multiplication tables.

In its simplest meaning, being wealthy is the opposite of being poor. And Seneca, a Latin philosopher, said it for us long, long ago: "It is not he who has little, but he who wants more who is poor."

Church Women To Hear Matthis

David Matthis, associate professor of government at West Texas State College and chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Randall County, will be the principal speaker for the May Fellowship Day meeting of the United Church Women.

Matthis will speak on the theme, "Citizenship; Free and Responsible," at 1 p.m. Friday, May 6, in the First Presbyterian Church. A covered dish luncheon will be held at noon.

The call for the fellowship day is as follows:

"Do you know that every part of our daily lives involves political actoin? The kind of home we live in; the water we drink; our transportation facilities and roads; schools; even the food we eat and the protection of our families from bodily harm; all these necessities and many more are in the hands of your elected representatives!

"Citizenship, freedom, and responsibility go hand in hand. St. Peter said, "Live as a free man, but live as a servant of God." Is not every Christian woman called if not required, to be an active participant in the affairs of government? The only condition necessary for the triumph of evil is that responsible citizens do nothing.

"On May Fellowship Day you will learn more about what it means to accept political responsibility and what you can do right where you live."

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Most of the water for the west — for agriculture, industry, cities, power — comes from the snow that falls in the mountains.

How much water will be available is determined by snow surveyors who measure the water content of the mountain snow pack in the winter and estimate the acre-feet of runoff on each watershed.

Several times each winter 1,000 snow surveyors measure the snow pack on 1,300 snow survey courses in remote, rugged mountain areas of the western states and British Columbia.

They cover about 35,000 miles via skiis, snowshoes, and over-snow machines in the roughest kind of country, under hazardous climatic and physical conditions.

The men are trained in snow measuring, over-snow travel by ski and snowshoe, snow survival, search and rescue operations, and operating specially designed over-snow machines called sno-cats, weasels, ber-cats, and sno-bugs. They know how to spot avalanche areas, and how to bivouac overnight in several feet of snow.

Data the snow surveyors collect is translated into a water supply forecast the Soil Conservation Service issues each spring — about mid-April. Water users of the west base their plans for the year's operations on this forecast.

The Soil Conservation Service coordinates and reports the results of snow survey activities of about 100 public and private agencies and organizations in the western states.

TELEPHONE TALK
by Al Leach, Manager

"CHANGES"

Down at the Telephone Company a lot of new terms are having to be learned. Terms like mark sensing, bubbles, fields, zip-strip, and others.

What is the significance of this to you as our customer? It means faster, more efficient, "electronic" billing is being introduced to Canyon. We are in the process of converting to the new system and some Canyon customers will receive two long distance statements this month, one covering calls handled under the old method and one covering calls handled by our new "electronic" system. Explanatory information will be included with each bill. This is another example of progress and utilization of the best methods available to help make telephone service the "best bargain in town."

SPIRIT OF SERVICE IN ACTION

Every now and again I hear a warm, human story about people that makes me feel pretty good. I think this one will make you feel good, too.

Here's what happened: A man and his wife had come to court to adopt a little girl — a German orphan. But one of the officials told the man (dressed in a suit and sport shirt) that is was the local custom for a man to wear a tie when appearing before the judge in court.

Protesting, the tieless man said if he were not allowed in court now, the adoption would be postponed, perhaps for months.

At this point, Jerry Sharp, a veteran installation foreman for Southwestern Bell who happened to overhear the conversation, removed his own tie and, handing it to the man, said, "Here, take mine."

Well, a few minutes later, the adoption proceedings were underway and the little girl had a new family. So often it's the "little" extra things you do that help the most.

BRIGHT IDEA FOR SPRING

Driving around Canyon the other day, I suddenly realized that Spring is with us again.

Everywhere I went — from the square to the College Campus — I saw the drab signs of winter being replaced by fresh new colors. Color seems to be the talk of Spring.

Perhaps you've seen our magazine ads suggesting that you "pick-a-phone from a garden of colors." It's a timely reminder that a color extension phone is an easy, inexpensive way to add a dash of color, and time-saving convenience, to any room. Nine beautiful colors to choose from! You can order yours by calling the telephone business office.

PROTECT THIS INCOME WITH HAIL INSURANCE

During 1959 in Texas alone, more than five and one-half million dollars in crop hail damage claims were paid by insurance companies. Statistics show that equally that amount of loss was suffered on crops that were not insured. Your Texas Farm Bureau agent can give you complete details of the Farm Bureau policy that allows you more insurance per acre than any other policy. Texas Farm Bureau maintains their own staff of adjusters so you are assured of fast, equitable payment on all your claims. See your Texas Farm Bureau agent NOW — be sure of adequate insurance coverage for your crops.

After being identified it was returned to them by Ira's brother, Henry Schrib, who was visiting in Canyon. Now they are wondering if the base is still intact at Floydada and why and how this all occurred.

Writer's Confab Set for June 17

A one-day West Texas Writers' Conference has been scheduled June 17 at West Texas State College, according to Dr. A. K. Knott, head of the English department, which sponsors the conference.

Highlight of the day's conference will be a dinner at which awards for winning contest entries in four writing fields will be presented. Deadline for entering the contest is May 20, and entries should be mailed to the WT English department.

Awards will be made to first place and honorable mention in the fields of short story, poetry, essay, and article. A fee of $3 for each entry will be made, and the fee also pays for the major activities of the conference.

Main speaker and consultant for the conference will be Dr. Lawrence Bowling, professor of English at Texas Tech and formerly a member of the Yale University faculty. He, assisted by WT English department faculty members, will appear on a panel.

Short story, article, and essay entries should be from 2,000 to 5,000 words in length. Length and form for poetry is optional, Dr. Knott said.

Brucellosis Meet Called Thursday

Livestock producers with cattle in Randall County are urged to attend the educational meeting on "Brucellosis" Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the district courtroom in Canyon.

This meeting is being called by John Brazzil, Randall County agricultural agent, to explain the situatin now existing on county certification programs.

All types of cattle are included whether they are beef or dairy cattle. Owners of cattle living outside the county but having cattle in the county also are affected.

Many Texas Panhandle counties are now going into a county certification program. The marketing of cattle will be drastically changed as county certification goes into effect.

Because livestock production is a vital agricultural enterprise in Randall County the meeting is of great importance, Brazzil said.
